SELF-LUBRICATING STEAM-ENGINE PACKING.
Just Imported by them Ex "MAIDEN QUEEN."
It will not gum nor shut—is easy on the rods—keeps them clean and polished—reduces friction—is easily fixed—saves loss of time and waste of material—and being self-lubricating requires the use of no OIL.
The importance of increased durability cannot be over-estimated, while its cheapness, combined with the above-mentioned qualities, effects a saving to the consumer of from 100 to 300 per cent.
Orders for China will only be received by

HONGKONG, CANTON & MACAO learn that on the 11th July, after departing over to the Police Authorities the junks and 15 prisoners, brought into Hongkong that morning, H. M. S. Albatross left at 2 P.M. to look for another junk reported by a Chinaman to have been stolen from him. She steamed round Lantau Island, and into all the Bays and Creeks on both sides, and that evening anchored off Yung Shue Village. The following day at 11 ked that, as to the alleged beating, he was not a particle of truth in it. His Worship replied that the case was really a paltry one, but he would go into it for the purpose of testing the Chinese witnesses.—The complainant's case then fully and carefully gone into, the complainant and a witness deposed jointly and circumstantially to a general and unprovoked whipping "all round" of the Chinese in his house, on the part of

The Nankai has been inspecting and planning the space for the construction of a projected bond to connect the promenade along with the bond that connects the Custom house and the museum. The heterogeneous concrete is met with at what want to be the old Chint Street," is somewhat remarkable, and the question "what brings them in" is more easily put than the answer: what is more remarkable is the fact that the old Chint Street is long gone, yet introduced some sort of local variations, in order to keep the locality out of sight and lookshous objects. The urban community should lose the other side of the site of the old factories, and Mingqua is no more, they are not likely to be of any substantial use in the future. The old Chint Street is gone, and the old Chint Street has been selling back some of the landed property, perhaps to pay for the mandarin "agente." That place tributed to him. Even if we admit that there would be something annoying in the right of an Englishman after such a rider had been made, as we are especially annoyed by a cockney when we are told that he is of blood-royal of our own, there still will be something in this Scotch saying. The height of absurdity would be to go no further than in the attempt to prove that you are not an Englishman "boxing yourself" in the streets of Paris. The essence of an Englishman, in the Scotch man's mind—that in regard to which all other qualities are mere superficial accidents—is his habit of boxing himself. A key is one who rides horses, a cook is one who seizes food, and an Englishman is one who boxes himself. To separate this quality from the nationality is to assume that it would be conceivable of geometry that the angle of a square or of a triangle whose angles are equal to two right angles. Hence, to say it, in order to end yourself of the imputation of English blood, is a solecism of the most preposterous kind, and seems to imply that there must be whisky in Parisian enough to turn even a Scotch brain. I cannot but regret that our countryman, who is so far from being permitted to call him so, was not less severely punished by the English. He had danced with his mistress his way, and had been so severely flogged by the English, that he would have given a fine more than a whipping refusal of the alms, and no doubt he would have excited the admiration of the people always willing to recognise artistic qualities and to sympathize with oppressed nationalities. He said, indeed, with a soothing humility, that when he was guilty of this enormous practical blot he was "as

The glorious unreasonableness of Britons is its advantage. We are proud, and altogether without ground, of some of our manifestations. When poor Private Boyes let himself be knocked on the head by a stone from how to a Chinaman, we felt that he had done a nobler action than if he had saved his brains—no very clear ones, but saved by a skillful diplomacy. When an English colonate is killed by a surprising number of regulars, we are surprised to see the English colonate peculiarities to another hemisphere, they are got into many disorders which are avoided by a nation more capable of adapting itself to circumstances, and that if they are strong enough to fight through their first difficulties, they are persons more likely to succeed in the end. It is easy to say upon the occasional basis of that true British perversity which is connected with a good deal of our length of character. We must, however, confess that the drawback to our strength is that in an occasional rough-and-tumble between different nations of the United Kingdom in the colonies of Paris. It has taken over a century and a half since the Union to present such a very imperfect amalgamation of closely allied races that a Scotchman takes it a primary article of duty—at least when he is drunk—to knock down an Englishman in order to vindicate his claims to the distinctness of race in the eyes of Frenchmen, and before the Frenchmen the different parts of our country are united in a happy family, and English, Scotch, Irish are melted into fellow-countrymen. A problem easier to state than

Now A PRIEST SETS UP A FIGHT.—An English paper, the Hecchar Courier, tells this story: "As Rev. Father Flint of Ballinacorney, it appears, the part of 'peace-maker' in a double sense. On Thursday last, he informed, as the revered gentleman is coming down the main street of that place, he was accidentally upon an Irish peasant, in which a brace of pugilistic encounters were progressing rather warmly at the same time. Finding remonstrances ineffectual in putting a stop to the 'mills,' the priest went in search of a policeman, but Bobby being absent, as usual in such emergencies, Father Flint borrowed the aid of a soldier, by stealth, and returned hastily to the spot where the warriors were engaged, and proceeded with the most ardent enthusiasm, and finding his powers of moralisation still unimpaired, he adopted the forcible argument of planting a vigorous well-directed thrack on the 'nibs' of more sturdy antagonists of each pair, dropping two of his doves in the most approved fashion of police tactics, and leaving another of the combatants a considerable distance from the field, effectually putting an end to the sport. Such was the story of the revered gentleman's intervention in the last blow, that he broke not Father Pat's head but also the policeman's mace, so there was assuredly no flattery in the compliment. All honor, say to Father Flint.

A RADICAL paper is pathetic over the injury of somebody who, it says, "was led by a rebel shell." What wonder, on the shells were "rebel," that there should be so many rebel colonels."

This image shows a vertical strip of a document, likely a book or a bound manuscript. The left side of the strip is dominated by a dark, heavily textured area, which appears to be the binding or the gutter of the book. This area has a mottled, almost black appearance with some lighter, fibrous-looking textures. To the right of this dark area is a lighter, off-white or light gray region. This lighter area is mostly blank but shows signs of wear, including small dark specks, faint horizontal lines, and some irregular discoloration. The overall image has a high-contrast, grainy quality, characteristic of a scanned document or a photograph of a physical object.

Opinions of the Press

From the Englishman (Calcutta) of June 8:—

"The celebrated volumes of the French Abbé Hue on China, and Sir Rutherford Alcock's account of Japan are, no doubt, works of a far higher class and more extensive scope than the one now before us; but for practical utility.

for all purposes of locomotion, trading and residence in any of the places coming within its compass, The Treaty Ports of China and Japan, by Messrs. Mayers, Dennys and King, far surpasses them. It is difficult to know under what class of books to place it, for it contains a mixture of history, topography, hygiene, Murray's Hand-book and Bradshaw's Guide,—all as complete and excellent in their own-classes as could be pected; and though, perhaps, the book will not prove attractive to students, it is calculated to give a more intimate knowledge of the towns it describes, aided by the excellent maps which accompany it—the work entirely of Chinese—than any of the more elaborated works that have preceded it. * * * We trust we have said enough to show that for any one about to visit, or reside in either of the countries described,

A very interesting book has lately been published, entitled "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan," to which it forms a complete guide, and regarding the history of which it gives interesting particulars. Maps of the various localities described are work of the kind was much needed, to place within reach of the general public information regarding the districts in which they reside that had hitherto been concealed under the mysterious hieroglyphics of the Chinese language, or at best open only to simologues. The modest hon-expressed by the authors, that much will be found in the present book that is new and unknown to the general reader, in, we think, fully justified. * * * Hongkong and Canton, for example, each occupy more than 100 pages, comprising every conceivable particular regarding them, from their history native and foreign, to particulars of the geological formation and botanically the wealth of the neighbourhood. * * * No the most interesting feature in the book. Under review, is the insight it affords us into the character of the population in different parts of this vast empire. * * * One of the most interesting chapters is devoted to a sketch of the history and topographical features of Formosa. The vicissitudes of its history, the peculiarities of its inhabitants, and the reputed mineral wealth of its hills afford ample subject for research, and a person of Mr Swinhoe's tastes, must have offered powerful attractions. From his "Notes on Formosa" are derived many of the particulars given in the work under review. * * * Interesting descriptions of the fauna and flora of the island are given, for details of which we refer our readers to the book itself. We have, we believe, said enough to show the scope and character of the work: and must tak leaves of it for the present, though with the intention of completing our sketch of the information it gives regarding the various treaty ports, on a future occasion. In the meantime, we can assure our readers that no one who takes the trouble to gain more intimate knowledge of it, will regret the time employed.

(Singapore Free Press, May 9.)

We referred briefly, several days ago, to a new work published by Messrs. A. Shorter & Co., of Hongkong, entitled "The Treaty Ports of China and Japan." But it would be utterly impossible, in a condensed notice of such a work, to give an adequate idea of its contents. The historic events of interest since the foundation of the settlement of Hongkong, are perhaps too much condensed into a general summary.

ry; but the most important feature in the composition of the society of the present colony, is detailed at greater length. When we come to consider that the book before us makes no pretensions to be a history, but merely a guide book, we cannot hesitate to pronounce it at once the most complete work of its kind ever issued. The Appendix may be termed the China Branch, and the text, the main trunk of the work.

A very useful book has just been issued from the Press in Hongkong under the title of the "Guide Book and Yade-mecum" of the to the "Treaty Ports of China and Japan" compiled and edited by Mr N. B. Denny.

The Book is very conveniently got up ; interspersed with maps of the various treaty ports, and contains, besides much useful local information, historical sketches much interest. Our readers will feel naturally interested in what is said concerning Shanghai ; and a good idea of the tory of this place is conveyed in H. Pennys' work. * * * The other portions of China and also those in Japan are carefully described, and almost all particulars which can be required by the traveller or resident are to be found in this work, which may be justly regarded as the "Murray" for China.
